

THE DAILY BULLETIN.

WEDNESDAY EVE., APRIL 2, 1884.

BLAINE is said to be rapidly gaining strength in Illinois.

The hip pocket lately discovered in Ohio appears to be large enough to hold concealed a cannon.

The court house jail at Cincinnati cost $1,000,000. The law library was valued at $200,000, many of the volumes costing $50 each.

The business failures in the United States for the three months just closed, numbered 2,306, with liabilities amounting to $40,000,000.

The best evidence in the world that no Kentuckians were in the mob at Cincinnati is the fact that none of the murders were lynchings.

WM. FOURBURY is the last surviving veteran of 1812 in Fleming County, and although ninety-two years old, is still in good bodily health.

The Communes of the Paris of America have not burned any more court houses since last week. The revolution of '84 seems to be at an end.

The miserable law which practically excludes men of intelligence and information from the jury box will now probably receive some attention.

There are some people at Cincinnati who are really happy. They are the murderers who are out on bail. Their bonds were destroyed when the courthouse was burned.

SEVERAL PERSONS who went to the residence of Joshua Blanton, in Fleming County, a few days ago for the purpose of lynchings him, left as suddenly as they came, and one of them with buckshot in his hide.

The house of Representatives has voted against the appointment of a board of Commissioners of State Charities. Such a board would have been of great service in insuring the proper management of the various charitable institutions of the State, and the defeat of the measure is, we think, to be regretted.

No Mob From Kentucky.

The accounts of the mob sent out from Cincinnati make frequent mention of the part taken by Kentuckians in the bloody outbreak. In Saturday's account the following appeared: "It having been reported that a mob was on its way from the Kentucky side, a detachment was sent to the bridge to head them. They arrived just in time to see the yelling, singing mass as it swarmed across the bridge and to be brushed aside by the mob. The singing was heavily armed, many of them having guns, and it sped rapidly to the scene of conflict, giving force to the efforts of the assassins."

There is not a word of truth in this. It is a pure invention of the sensational reporter. No mob, armed or unarmed, went from Kentucky to Cincinnati.

This morning there is a repetition of the lie about Kentuckians: "Fully a thousand men from Kentucky took a hand." Or, more correctly, the Kentuckians were drawn to Cincinnati by the sight of the scene enacted; but there is not the slightest evidence that any considerable number of them took part with the mob. A conclusive point is that in the long list of killed and wounded the name of no Kentuckian appears. If Kentuckians had taken an active part their names would have appeared in one or the other of the lists.

KENTUCKIANS.

Picked From Sewer Nests Found Here, There and Everywhere.

In the Roman Catholic Cemetery of the little hamlet of Armore, Penn., there is a handsome shaft of granite surmounted by a Latin cross. Upon it is engraved the name of "GILL." The person referred to is Mr. William Gill, of Philadelphia, who is not dead at all, but in remarkably good health. Five years ago in passing through Armore he was carried with the place that he was to be buried there; and in order that there might be no doubt, he built his monument. The sexton of the church is kept busy telling this story to chance visitors, and the villagers are proud of the romantic incident.

The Chinese have begun to adopt the Western chemical science, and a factory has recently been erected for the manufacture of sulphuric acid on a large scale. Two well-known chemical text books, Malgait's "Elementary Chemistry" and Fresenius' "Chemical Analysis," have also been translated into the Chinese with the help of a great number of new characters, and added into the imperial colleges. Tong Sang, First Minister, and a director of the Tung Wen Huan, has taken the work under his immediate patronage and written a preface for the first of these books.

An English Judge, having received an intimation that a man he had sentenced to death wished personally to see him, went to his cell, when the man said: "I stole your watch years ago. You were looking into me as I sat in the street." "Yes," said the Judge; "but I always wondered how the thing was done, because I particularly valued the watch which was hanging from the fob, and kept my hand on them." "You did, save for an instant, when I tickled you with a straw behind the ear," he went on to explain that the watch was such a peculiar one, the name being embossed on it, that they had been afraid to sell it, and said, "If you are ink and paper I can give you a letter which will enable you to recover it." And the Judge did recover it.

The Mississippi Floods.

NEW ORLEANS, April 2.—The river is falling slightly at this point, but is rising in the Atchafalaya and points west. Another release is reported at Devore, St. James, nine miles above Guidry. The Government steamer, Patrol, is still out in the open channel in the Davis plantation, where it was carried by the force of water running through the broken levee. It would be impossible to float her out the way she went in, but soundings have been made from where she is back through the swamp to Lake Salvador, and plenty of water found. Once in Lake Salvador the vessel will have no trouble in running into Bayou La Poudre and thence into the Mississippi. The Relief Committee shipped fifteen days' rations for 6,280 persons on board the steamer Tensas to the Tensas and Bayou Macon districts. On Wednesday a shipment to the Black River will be made. A great many applications for relief are coming in from the Ouachita and Black River counties.

Cowardly Conduct.

PITTSBURGH, April 2.—Miss Frankie Tankersley, daughter of Judge Tankersley of Washington, D. C., is at the Seventh Avenue Hotel, suffering from a severe attack of hysteria. The young lady had been away visiting, and arrived here yesterday on her way to Washington. A freshly dressed passenger, about forty-five years of age, forced her attentions on her. He became so unbearable that the passengers were compelled to interfere. The young lady, who is of a nervous temperament, became so distressed that she was compelled to retire to her berth. Heaver, thirty miles from here, the train was stopped and a physician and Judge Tankersley were sent for.

Uncle Rufus Becomes an Oil Speculator.

NEW YORK, April 2.—Rufus Hatch, after trying to sell grain and the hotel business, has decided to go into oil speculation and has been admitted as a member of the New York Petroleum Exchange. S. M. Hill, Gould's oil partner, and H. H. Bondie and several other Wall street men have joined the same exchange. Certificates of membership, which sold on Saturday at $250 a share, are now at $250.

FATAL FLAMES.

A Young Man Burned to Death at Massillon.

CANTON, O., April 2.—The Reed millinery store at Massillon took fire early this morning. It was supposed that all the inmates had escaped, but when the fire was extinguished the remains of Owen Reed, aged seventeen, were discovered, and his father's body was found in an unconscious state, severely if not fatally injured.

Silver Coinage.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The Merchants' Exchange of St. Louis has forwarded to the members of Congress resolutions passed at a meeting of the Board of Directors, offering it in their opinion that the public good has decided to go into silver dollars should be immediately suspended by act of Congress, for a period of at least two years, and Congress should prohibit the further issue of bills of a smaller denomination than $5, and thus insure the substitution of silver coins for such bills.

The Soudan.

LONDON, April 2.—Latest advice report that Osman Digna is encamped in the vicinity of Tannah, having about 1,000 followers and many sheiks, and that he is preparing to give battle to tribes friendly to the English.
